

Wilson Quits Mobilization Job In Tiff With HST

Washington, (AP)—Charles E. Wilson quit yesterday as mobilization boss because President Truman sided with his Wage Board instead of Wilson in a disagreement over how best to avert a crippling steel strike.

Wilson, in a tart letter of resignation submitted Friday and made public yesterday, said he could not "accept public responsibility" for government actions in the steel dispute "which I cannot control."

Truman accepted the resignation, effective today.

The President told Wilson he does not regard as unreasonable the proposals for settling the steel wage controversy, and said they do not "constitute any real breach in our wage stabilization policies."

That put him squarely behind the efforts of CIO President Philip Murray, also head of the Steelworkers union, to win major concessions from the steel producers.

Charles E. Wilson

At Midland, Pa., for dedication of a new union hall, Murray declined comment on Wilson's resignation.

But in a 45-minute speech, the silver-thatched president of the CIO and the United Steelworkers again blasted the steel industry for failing to accept the recommendations of the wage board.

The exchange of letters between Truman and Wilson showed that the President had vetoed giving the steel industry advance assurance of prices increases offsetting any wage boosts.

Wilson originally advocated that neither wage nor price increases should be permitted if the nation's economy as a whole was to be kept stable.

Finally persuaded that the official 17 1/2 cent recommendation of the Wage Stabilization Board must be the basis for negotiations, Wilson sought Truman's agreement on a price-ceiling boost. This Mr. Truman gave, but on Friday—Wilson's letter to the President said—"You changed the plan we agreed upon."

The President told Wilson that if eventual settlement of the negotiations warranted a price increase, "on grounds of fairness and equity" it would be granted.

But the President commented that steel company profits are at extraordinarily high levels and would amount to more than the cost of any wage increase under Wage Board regulations.

The Wage Stabilization Board's six public and six labor members had recommended, as a way for settling the steel wage dispute, proposals which Wilson has termed "a serious threat" to the stabilization effort it put into effect. The six industry members dissented.

Murray's CIO Steelworkers union says it will strike on April 8 if the industry does not accept the recommendations.

Wilson's resignation, released by the White House yesterday, said:

"I have no desire to cause you embarrassment, yet in all sincerity I feel that as a practical matter I cannot accept public responsibility for major stabilization actions which I cannot control.

"It is clear to me that I cannot function effectively on stabilization issues," Wilson wrote. "As I have said to you and publicly on many occasions, the threat to the country from inflation is almost as grave as that from imperialist Communist aggression."

Chairman Nathan P. Feinsinger of the Wage Board, who had been conferring constantly with Wilson ever since the WSB's recommendations for settling the steel dispute were announced, said in a statement last night that Wilson had changed his mind about the WSB settlement proposals.

Feinsinger said that whereas Wilson initially termed them "a serious threat" to stabilization, he later "was beginning to think they were not unbalancing and were, in fact, quite constructive."

Wilson took over the top mobilization post on Dec. 15, 1950.

Presidential Assistant John R. Steelman will take over temporarily as acting director of defense mobilization. He will also continue in his present job.

Truman wrote Wilson that he regretted the circumstances and felt the nation owed the retiring mobilization boss "a deep debt of gratitude."

Truman, however, made clear he differed with Wilson on the steel wage settlement.

Since his talk with Wilson last weekend at Key West, Fla., the President said in his own letter, "I find that the proposed changes in wages and working conditions are by no means unreasonable and do not, in fact, constitute any real breach in our wage stabilization policies."

To Wilson, whom he called from the presidency of the General Electric Co. to head the mobilization effort, the President declared:

"I shall be sorry not to have you at my side, but I wish you success and happiness in whatever future work you undertake."

The recommendations which the WSB made call for a three-installment wage boost of 17 1/2 cents an hour, plus other benefits which the board estimated to be worth 5 cents an hour. Average earnings in the industry now average $2 an hour.

The board also recommended that the new union-management contract include provision for the union shop, under which all workers would have to belong to Murray's union.

The industry has contended that it cannot grant the WSB's recommendations without a steel price hike of about $12 a ton. Murray says $2 a ton would be enough to meet the added cost. Most government officials put the figure at $4 to $5 a ton.

Murray and six major steel producers will meet in New York today to resume negotiations, with the strike deadline only eight days away.

Wilson's lengthy letter to Truman, sketching the background of his decision to step down, made it clear that the climax came when he called on the President Friday afternoon.

Democratic Leaders Expect Wide-Open Convention

Wilson Move Delays Action On Controls

Washington, (AP)—Chairman Maybank (D-S.C.) of the Senate Banking committee said last night it would delay action on extending economic controls because of the "uncertainty" created by the resignation of Charles E. Wilson as director of defense mobilization.

The committee was to have met today to discuss a bill to extend controls, which are slated to expire June 30.

The White House was reported planning an all-out drive to head off threatened drastic changes it contends would weaken price, wage and other anti-inflation measures.

Maybank said he planned no further meetings of the committee until he had canvassed its members on the Wilson development, and determined "the best course of action."

Maybank was known to be concerned over the possibility of both wage and price increases in the steel controversy that might touch off a new wave of inflation. He also had respect for Wilson's ability in the top defense and stabilization job of the government.

Maybank's statement follows: "I learned of Mr. Wilson's resignation with extreme regret. He is an outstanding American who has made a personal sacrifice in an effort to serve his country."

"In view of his sudden announcement there is certain to be an attendant wave of hysteria and confusion, charges and counter-charges."

"My greatest concern at the moment is the effect of this confusion on our overall stabilization program which is just now showing effective results to the American people."

"I do not believe it would be wise to take further committee action on such vital (controls) legislation, until the air has cleared."

The controls law on which the committee has been holding hearings is the basis for Federal checks on prices, wages, rent levels, credit and the rationing of scarce critical materials to private industry.

What effect President Truman's decision not to run for another term would have was not immediately clear, although it seemed likely to lessen White House influence.

Rescue Workers Recover Body

Pottsville (AP)—Rescue workers last night recovered the body of one miner and sighted three others of five who were trapped Thursday night when water flooded their pits at a hard coal diggings near Forestville.

The body of Joseph Sodontus, 39, Minersville, was found about 535 feet from the surface and only 50 feet from where the men had set off a dynamite charge just before the water filled the pits. Two others managed to escape the watery grave.

10 Killed, 15 Hurt
Lima, Peru, (AP)—At least ten children were killed and more than 20 seriously injured yesterday when panic broke out in a movie theater over a false alarm that the roof was falling in. Fifteen survivors were reported unconscious at Children's hospital and doctors gave them little chance of surviving.

Army Working On Guided Missiles To Destroy Enemy Planes At Altitudes Up To 15 Miles

Washington, (AP)—American Army researchers are working on a guided missile capable of destroying enemy aircraft at all altitudes up to 15 miles, Congress has been told.

Brig. Gen. Stanley R. Mickelson, head of research for special weapons, also told congressmen the goal is to protect American cities largely with guided missiles firing at ranges several times greater than present anti-aircraft guns.

Maj. Gen. E. T. Bullene, chief of the Chemical Corps, warned that Russia is believed to be "intensively" exploiting new nerve gases developed by Nazi Germany. "Much of the German equipment and many German research men in this field are now in Russia," he said.

These disclosures were in testimony taken early this month and released yesterday by a House appropriations subcommittee considering budget requests.

The Army Research and Development division asked for 450 million dollars in new funds as part of the Army's total $14,200,000,000 for the fiscal year beginning July 1. The research figure represents a 23 million dollar increase over last year.

Mickelson said 28 1/2 millions of the research total would go for continued experiments on surface-to-air guided missiles and allied equipment.

The objective in this field, he said, "is to provide weapons which will be capable of destroying enemy aircraft at all altitudes up to 80,000 feet and at ranges several times those possible with conventional anti-aircraft artillery." When developed, he went on, these weapons "will extend the capabilities of and replace much of our conventional anti-aircraft artillery . . . to provide the necessary protection for the air defense of continental United States and the armies in the field."

Bullene asked for $49,746,407 to continue experimentation in atomic, biological and chemical warfare and to obtain material.

The breakdown figures were given in secret, but the testimony showed that increased funds had been requested for biological warfare.

Bullene said this was due to rising costs and because "people are paying more attention" to biological warfare "and taking it seriously."

Munsan, Monday, (AP)—Communist staff officers, blocked in their efforts to induce Allied negotiators to approve Russia as a neutral truce observer in Korea, today proposed returning the issue to top negotiators.

The Reds suggested that the joint subcommittee, which earlier had failed to solve the problem, meet tomorrow.

An Allied staff officer promised the Reds an answer at 9 a. m. Tuesday (7 p. m. EST, Monday).

The issue of Russia's role in post-armistice Korea is one of three major problems blocking a truce. The others are prisoner exchange and Communist insistence on rebuilding airfields during an armistice.

The Allies protested yesterday against the location of prisoner of war camps near Communist supply lines but the Reds refused to move them.

Belgium May Not Fill Commitments
Brussels, Belgium, (AP)—Because of a budgetary headache, Belgium may not be able to fulfill 1952 defense commitments made at Lisbon to her Atlantic pact partners.

Belgium is short 240 million dollars for this year's defense efforts and although government officials have been searching for a solution, none has been found.

Hartford, Conn., (AP)—The Hartford Courant said last night Connecticut Democrats will enter U. S. Sen. Brien McMahon (D-Conn.) as a "favorite son" candidate for the party's presidential nomination.

San Francisco, (AP)—A juvenile gang feud erupted in gunfire early yesterday, leaving two youths dead and three critically wounded. The dead were Norman Bethelo, 20, and Andrew Ulibarri, 19.

Europeans Surprised By Truman Move

London, (AP)—Europeans greeted with surprise, regret and a slight case of jitters yesterday's President Truman's announcement that he will not seek reelection.

Some were surprised at his voluntary retirement because they had come to regard him as a scrapper.

Some were regretful because they regarded him as one of their champions in plumping for overseas aid.

Some were nervous that it might lead to a change in American foreign policy.

Mixed with these feelings was the feeling that Truman's announcement "They traditionally carefully keep out of United States internal politics."

Edwin's former prime minister, Clement R. Attlee, demonstrated this reserve. Just before boarding a plane for a brief visit in the United States, he said:

"I never comment on American presidential elections."

Philadelphia (AP)—One of Pennsylvania's top Democrats, Philadelphia District Attorney Richardson Dilworth, last night said Sen. Estes Kefauver (D-Tenn.) is the "best possible presidential candidate the party has at the moment."

Dilworth said he thinks Kefauver is the best candidate because Gov. Adlai Stevenson of Illinois "has shown a reluctance which will make it hard to get an organization steamed up for him."

On the Republican side, New Hampshire's Senator Bridges, the minority leader of the Senate, interpreted Truman's decision as "an indication the President feels the chances for a Democratic victory this fall are mighty slim."

Washington (AP)—Frank E. McKinney said yesterday he will stay on—at least until the July 21 national convention—as chairman of the Democratic National committee despite President Truman's announcement that he will not run again.

McKinney refused to comment on the President's retirement plan, but through a committee spokesman he said firmly he would resign.

Merrill Late For Wedding
New York (AP)—A handsome pair of young opera stars were married yesterday, and the Metropolitan Opera Co. couldn't have done it better—but the groom missed his cue by a full half hour.

The bride and groom, Roberta Peters and Robert Merrill, both singing at the Metropolitan, and many of the Met company attended their wedding in the Park Ave. synagogue.

But most of the noted guests, and the approximately 1,000 ordinary guests, showed up long before Merrill did.

In the arrangements, it had been forgotten that this was the day for the Greek Independence day parade up Fifth Ave.

Traffic was snarled so badly in mid-Manhattan by the parade that the groom was still sweating it out in his car a half hour after the wedding was to begin at 4 p.m.

Truman Decides Against Seeking Party Nomination

Washington, (AP)—President Truman called on fellow Democrats yesterday to "get in there and pitch" for a November victory—and he promised to work just as enthusiastically for the party ticket "as if I were on it."

Making his first public appearance since bowing out of the White House race Saturday night and opening up the contest for the Democratic nomination, the President told a tumultuous reception at the Mayflower hotel:

"I am just as sure as that I am standing here that the Democratic convention in July will nominate a winner."

"I will be in there just the same as if I were the nominee because I am that kind of a Democrat. I'm not a fair day Democrat."

Truman's dramatic announcement he would not accept renomination already has cleared the way for a free-for-all scramble for top place on the Democratic ticket. There was some talk the party might "draft" him to run again.

But most party members predicted the nominating convention will be wide open, although they looked for Truman to take an active interest in the selection of a new standard bearer.

Gov. Adlai Stevenson of Illinois—widely reported to be Truman's choice for the nomination—yesterday left the door wide open for acceptance of the nomination although he repeated he does not seek it.

He was asked point blank: Will you say you will not accept the Democratic nomination?

"I will not say that," Stevenson replied.

At yesterday reception given by Democratic National Chairman Frank E. McKinney, the President and Mrs. Truman obviously were deeply moved.

Cries of "we want Truman" interrupted the President when he started to speak. He told party members jammed into the hotel ballroom that in the Democratic party lies the "salvation of the world and this great country of ours."

Truman urged the approximately 2,000 guests to guard against any "let down" on the Democratic foreign policy program. He added:

"I want elected a Democratic Congress, Senate, and Democratic governors, and I want everyone to get in there and pitch."

"Oh, nonsense," was the President's smiling reply when Mrs. India Edwards, Democratic committee vice chairman, told him "I almost died" with regret at his announcement Saturday night.

Among Democrats predicting Truman will take no back seat in the choice of a presidential nominee was Senator Humphrey of Minnesota. He said:

"I think you'll find the President expressing a real interest in the selection of a potential successor. But I am sure you won't find him trying to dictate to the convention in any way. I look for things to be wide open."

Truman's "out of the blue" announcement that he is not a candidate for re-election and wouldn't accept the nomination came Saturday night at the party's mammoth Jefferson-Jackson day dinner here.

It caught off base even those who had been predicting he would bow out of the picture.

"I have served my country long and I think, efficiently and honestly," the President told his startled audience of 5,000 at the National Guard armory, plus millions who heard the announcement by television and radio.

The immediate effect was to step up the campaigns of Sen. Estes Kefauver of Tennessee and Sen. Richard B. Russell of Georgia, previously avowed candidates for the nomination, and it brought Sen. Robert S. Kerr of Oklahoma formally into the race.

Kerr previously had said he

President Truman . . . "I Won't Run"

What Will Mr. Truman Do? May Lecture, Run For Senate

Washington, (AP)—What's ahead for President Truman after he leaves the White House next Jan. 20?

The most recent evidence of the President's plans is indirect. It is contained in the book "Mr. President" published two weeks ago.

The book was written by William Hillman, with the extensive help from Truman, who turned over to Hillman many of his personal papers, diary entries and so on.

In a foreword, Hillman said that in one of his exclusive interviews with Truman:

"The President tells me he has no intention of writing a book about himself, although he hopes that when he leaves the White House he may lecture on the problems of government under the general title of 'from precinct worker to president.'"

Truman himself has never said so publicly, but some of his associates have speculated that he would like nothing better than to return to the U. S. Senate, where he served before his election as vice president in 1944.

Truman indirectly heaped this speculation along by saying at a news conference several months ago that he would announce his plans before the deadline for filing for the senate in Missouri. That deadline is April 29.

There are already several aspirants for the Democratic nomination in Missouri for the senate seat now held by Republican Sen. James P. Kem. One of them is Truman's close associate, W. Stuart Symington, who stepped out this year as boss of the Reconstruction Finance Corp. (RFC).

Some observers have speculated that Symington would not have announced unless he had some assurance that Truman would not seek the senatorial nomination himself.

Bills are pending in Congress which would give all former presidents seats in the senate, where they could enter into debate but could not vote. In the past, no action has ever been taken on such legislation.

Truman, however, has yet to give any kind of a public nod to Kerr, and he is reportedly cool to Kefauver's candidacy. Russell was persuaded to run by anti-Truman Southerners whose primary objective was to keep Truman from being re-elected if he decided to run.

Circus Arrives In New York City From Sarasota

New York (AP)—A sure sign of spring—the circus—rolled into town today.

The big show, Ringling Brothers and Barnum and Bailey, moved into Madison Square Garden after unloading at the Bronx yards of the New York, New Haven and Hartford railroad.

Youngsters and photographers had a field day as menagerie and equipment wagons rumbled along city streets conveyed by the circus "big guys"—two dozen trunk-waving elephants.

The 37-car circus train arrived in Jersey City, N. J., Saturday night from its Sarasota, Fla., winter headquarters. From Jersey City, the cars were transported by barge up the East river to the railroad yards.

The big show gives its first performance Friday night, for the

Blast Causes Damages At I-H Building

An oil burner which failed to "spark" on schedule was believed yesterday to have been the cause of an explosion at the International Harvester showroom building, W. Main St., Stroudsburg, Saturday afternoon.

Verdon Fraley, insurance agent with whose company the building is insured, said it is believed that "the furnace didn't light up when it should have; that the gases kept forming and then when it (the burner) did spark an explosion occurred."

The explosion apparently damaged an entranceway into the cellar of the building and pushed the exterior wall outward six to eight inches.

John Detrick, a salesman with the farm equipment firm, was in the main building when the explosion occurred.

"I heard this terrific explosion," Detrick said. "It shook the whole building. I looked outside and saw a big cloud of dust, caused by the pressure. I went outside and saw the wall buckled out."

Detrick called the insurance agent and told him what had happened. A preliminary investigation failed to yield evidences of fire, Detrick said. "There was no point in calling the fire department, since there was no fire involved," he concluded.

Douglas Greene, who lives near the building, said that he was working outside when he heard the explosion and a whistle as the pressure escaped.

The explosion was heard (and felt) throughout the neighborhood. Fraley said the extent of damages will not be known until further estimates are available.

Martin Posts $500 Bond

Charles Martin, 29, of 917 Sarah St., Stroudsburg, was released from county jail on $500 bond Saturday pending hearing on a charge of impersonating an officer.

Still in county jail was Wilfred Bollerman, 37, Canadensis, who was arrested with Martin Friday afternoon outside the Hof Brau, a Delaware Water Gap hotel, by borough Police Chief Fred Decker and Pfc. Emil Weber, Stroudsburg State police.

Bollerman is charged with impersonating an officer and carrying firearms without a permit. A third man, Arthur Heater, 30, of 44 Washington St., East Stroudsburg, was also arrested, and charged with disorderly conduct.

Taken before Justice of the Peace Joseph T. Hauser, Bollerman and Martin were committed to jail. Heater was fined $10 and costs, and released.

Bollerman and Martin were accused of following Norman Derck, a bridge worker at the Gap, to his hotel room and ransacking it under the pretense they were "FBI agents making a checkup." Nothing was taken from the room, police reported.

First-Hand Account Of Tornado Destruction Given By County Native In Letter To Parents

From the center of the path of the recent tornado comes a first hand account of the disaster from a former local girl, Madeline Neipert Solida, who with her husband, Duard, and their small daughter, Jackie, weathered the storm in a trailer.

Madeline, who was born in Delaware Water Gap and went to school there, wrote an airmail letter to her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Neipert, of East Stroudsburg RD3, from Searcy, Ark. The family had been in Bald Knob, preparing to leave for Ohio the next morning when the storm struck Friday night.

"Judsonia is just flat," she said, "and Bald Knob on the road is flat. I never saw anything as bad as this. They are still digging bodies out. It has been nearly five days and they're still at it."

"I cleaned out our trailer and gave what I could away but I didn't have much. Billy and Virgil (Duard's brother) lost their trailer and their car is smashed up. Our trailer was at Bald Knob right in the middle of it. Trees unrooted and everything all the way around it, but it is in one piece. Our car is a total loss. A house roof fell on it. They've got kids and a baby homeless."

"It really is awful. I used to hear about storms, but I don't want to see any more. They've got Judsonia blocked off. I wish you all were here for a little while just to see what they all went through."

"We are going to leave as soon as they get straightened out. I just can't get over it. That's why I am writing because I can't get it off my mind. We sure were lucky because Duard was right in the middle of it."

The letter was turned over to the local Red Cross which has added the quota of $700 allotted to it by national Red Cross to take care of victims of this latest disaster to its previous total in a drive which ends this week.

With the quota for this year's Red Cross fund campaign now $14,515, the local leaders have issued an urgent appeal to all captains and workers to redouble their efforts in the closing days of the drive, and to report their returns promptly.

About half of the quota has been reported into headquarters, and relief for the tornado victims in the Midwest, the blood program and complete program of aid to servicemen, veterans and their dependents is based on the support given by the voluntary contributions of local citizens.

Anyone who has not been contacted by workers in his home community may send contributions to the Red Cross headquarters on Court House Square in Stroudsburg.

Fire Company Answer Three Sunday Alarms

Spring winds and dry brush combined to make the Marshall Creek Fire Co. turn out three times yesterday to quell grass fires.

The first was at 11 a. m. a short distance north of Craigs Meadows church; the second was at 2 p. m. near Charlton's lodge, on Route 209, near the East Stroudsburg airport turn-off; the third was at 4:35 p. m. when about two acres burned off on the Coolbaugh road near the Samuel Van Why residence.

Chief Ralph Miller said there was chief business during the afternoon at the firehouse; the ground observer post was manned from 1 to 4 p. m. by order of the Civil Defense chief at Harrisburg. The order was received in a letter Miller said.

Thousands Attend Faith Ceremony

Vatican City, (AP)—The hundred thousand Roman faithful, thronging the giant, pillared square before St. Peter's basilica, were urged last night to lead a worldwide battle to beat back the forces of evil.

The twilight ceremony climaxed a "Week of Faith" observance which was called in answer to the appeal of Pope Pius XII last month for a "crusade of Christian awakening to save the world from threatened ruin."

After the vast throng paraded past the stations of the cross set up before the doors of the world's greatest basilica, the Pope himself appeared on a balcony above and gave his benediction.

Pastor Presides At Jail Services

Rev. Hubert D. Newton, pastor of Presbyterian church of the Mountain, Delaware Water Gap, conducted services yesterday at the county jail. Assisting were Mr. and Mrs. George Hauser, Douglas Hawley, Vera Storms, Ann Townsend, Dick Wilson, Lyle Thomas, Mrs. George Keyes, William Marshall.

Volunteers Called Twice

Stroud township volunteer fire-fighters answered two calls yesterday.

At 11 a. m. the company was called out by the Analomink fire company to assist in putting out a chimney fire. When the Stroud trucks arrived the fire was under control.

The company put out a grass fire on Heller St., Pocono Park at 1 p. m. yesterday.

Grass Fire Extinguished

A grass fire on Mosier's Knob, near the home of Adolph Egger (formerly the Lloyd Treible property) was extinguished by some 25 volunteers of the Shawnee Fire Co. about 1:30 p. m. yesterday.

The fire was believed to have started when residents nearby were burning trash. The blaze was extinguished with hand-operated "Indians." Two fire trucks stood by.

Students Win Seven Firsts In Forensics

Both East Stroudsburg and Barrett township schools came through with flying colors in the district forensic contest at Northampton Saturday.

East Stroudsburg placed four "firsts" in the competition while the Barrett school boasted three.

Winners from the east borough school were Constance Beers in Shakespeare reading; Barbara Shaffer, wildlife oration and Lowell Fellman, baritone horn solo.

The East Stroudsburg school band, under the direction of Clement Wiedinmyer, again walked off with first honors in the district competition.

Barrett's three winning entries were: Shirley Imbt, serious declamation; Gretchen Sengle, extemporaneous speaking and Nancy Bender, radio speaking.

Speakers and musicians from Monroe, Lehigh, Northampton, Schuylkill, Berks and Carbon Counties were heard in the 36-event program.

Judges for the music competition were Theodore Nische, Olney High school, Philadelphia; Richard Neubert, Allentown High; Henry Solis, Central Junior High school, Allentown; Henry Neubert, South Mountain Junior High school, Allentown, and William Schemp, Lehigh University music department.

Forensic judges were Dwight Freshley, Lehigh debate coach; Albert A. Rights, Lehigh speech department and Andrew Erskine, Muhlenberg college speech instructor. Walter H. Sebring, Stroudsburg, served as a room chairman during the registration and contests.

Surety Of Peace Hearing Slated

Hearing on a surety of the peace charge against William Burger, Gilbert, will be at 10 p. m. tomorrow before Justice of the Peace Nathaniel Gruber, Gilbert.

Burger was arrested by Brodheadville State police Saturday night at his home, after his wife told police he had threatened her. Burger was first lodged in the county jail, later released on $500 bond pending hearing.

Officials at both plants conducted a complete tour through the buildings and answered questions from interested students.

A two-member committee made up of Barbara Reisenwitz and Marilyn Rider was responsible for the planning of the trip.

Boy Escapes With Multiple Bruises When He Comes In Contact With Moving Car

James Farry Jr., eight-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. James Farry, 601 Ann St., Stroudsburg, was taken to General Hospital at 11:40 a. m. Saturday after he had run in front of a moving vehicle, borough police said.

The boy, police reported, dashed across S. Seventh St. from the east side directly in front of a car driven by Clarence H. Williams, 25, Stroudsburg RD1.

According to the police report, young Farry was knocked down by the car and suffered a bruised right arm and leg, bruises on the right side of his face and a nose bleed.

He was taken to the hospital immediately by Williams where X-rays were taken. The photographs disclosed no fractures, police said.

Stroudsburg Police Chief James F. McConnell was the investigating officer.

Censorship Spreads

We usually think of censorship as a weapon of the totalitarian state, to be employed in a democratic country only on wartime military matters.

Yet there is censorship in the U. S. today—far more than the public realizes.

There are towns and cities where newspapers have officials to permit them access to public records and meetings.

In Washington, President Truman's so-called "security order" has encouraged bureaucratic censorship which threatens to block the most vital sources of news. Like-wise, Congress—historically the stronghold of free speech and open proceedings—holds more and more "executive" committee sessions, closed to the press and the public.

While the Democrats are in power in Washington, the Republican administration of Gov. Thomas E. Dewey in New York imposes such an ironclad gag on state employees that even the most routine information must come from a "public relations" official.

We in the newspaper business always have refrained from publishing certain things. Most of us do not publish the names of juveniles involved in crimes, or of innocent victims of sex attacks. Nor would we publish any news of a military nature which might give important information to our enemies.

Beyond these obvious categories, however, what the government at ALL levels does is the public's business, no matter how much the publication of it may embarrass some official. That goes with emphasis for the armed forces, which are spending a large share of our taxes, and some of whose officers consider most military news as "restricted information"—as well as for every public official right down to township or ward level.

Newspapermen know from painful experience that if you give a censor an inch, he will take a mile—if not two. That is why the steady growth of government censorship is such an insidious threat to freedom.

Operation Bonus

The state government of Pennsylvania closed the book last month on one of its biggest financial programs—the distribution of $424,240,926.70 in state bonuses to 1,200,705 veterans of World War Two.

The job was well handled. Administration costs worked out to $1,841,903—which amounts to $1.54 for every claim.

Organized veterans' groups agitated for this compensation for the service of the veterans, saying it would help make up to the veterans the time they lost in the armed forces.

Two Legislatures approved the bonus proposal and the voters, in the 1949 election, approved an amendment to the state constitution which authorized the bond issue to pay the bonus.

But we wonder now if those who supported this proposal believe it accomplished the intended purpose. The average bonus payment was $353—not a great deal of money by today's standards. The state has incurred a large 15-year debt, on which the taxpayers have to pay interest. We narrowly escaped a state income tax last year and probably will have to fight the same battle next year.

Pennsylvania is not lacking in gratitude for the services of the men who fought in World War II. One way of showing it would be by protecting the veterans' paychecks from further levies by government. And we may be able to do that if we avoid uneven distribution of cash we don't have.

Washington Report

—by Fulton Lewis, Jr.

Washington—Gen. Matthew Ridgway is spending a lot of time in Tokyo telling the Japanese how to deal with the Communist party and its spies and saboteurs now loose in Japan. He ought to stick to fighting the Korean—or 100-year—war.

Now that a peace treaty has been signed and we are going to let the Japanese run their own country, Ridgway doesn't want them to outlaw the Communist party. He says it will drive the Communists underground. What does he know about it?

Ridgway is a good army general but he wouldn't know a Communist from an Elk or a Rotarian. In fact, hardly anyone in the U. S. army is capable of spotting a Red, except a few experts in a G-2, the army intelligence service. G-2, however, seldom gets a chance to do anything about Communists in the military ranks. Almost every time they catch one it becomes a political issue and it is impossible to bounce the Kremlin stooges from the ranks.

The Japs, without Ridgway's help, can take care of the Communists. They have been sparring with Moscow Reds for more than 25 years. In fact, while our government was butting up to the Communists, the Japs were cracking Communist heads and hanging Soviet spies. They know their Russians.

It was back in 1935 that the Japanese first began warning the U. S. and the British that Russia was moving in on Asia with guns instead of butter. Our State department "experts" and the pitifully inept series of secretaries of War and Navy this nation endured during that period all yawned at the Japanese warnings. Some of them were loath to even try working out any joint operation to stop the Reds.

There is a new book to be published May 12 that will reden a few faces in Washington and elsewhere in regard to the Japanese situation prior to the outbreak of World War II. It is called "Back Door To War—The Roosevelt Foreign Policy, 1933 to 1941." It was written by Charles Callan Tansill, professor of American diplomatic history at Georgetown University, Washington, D. C.

Tansill, by virtue of his standing as a scholar, bludgeoned the State department into letting him look at a few files and diplomatic cables. Just like a lot of us, he knew where to look, once he got the locks off the administration's secret files. His story, which will be detailed here later, is a shocking recital of warmongering efforts on the part of some government officials who wanted us to get into a war with Japan in the worst way.

By now, of course, the Japanese must consider us lunatics. For years they tried to warn us about the Communists, but we insisted on beating their brains out before we got wise. So I doubt if they'll pay much attention to Ridgway. They might even follow our example and round up the Reds. Of course, they'll probably have to fight the Army and our State department in order to get it done, just as we had to expose Alger Hiss and a few other agents of the Kremlin before the administration would admit the existence of a Kremlin lover on the payroll.

Ridgway, in cautioning the Japs not to outlaw the Reds, noted that the Russians had thousands of airplanes and thousands of trained troops in Siberia ready to pounce on Japan. On the same day Gen. Omar N. Bradley, chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, warned the world that Russia would extend its aggression whenever and wherever it thought it could win.

In other words, both generals admit the dangers of another Soviet assault, but Ridgway insists to the Japanese that this should not throw them off balance. He wants the Japs to realize the danger of Russian legions, but to sit on their hands while the Kremlin builds up its fifth column inside the country. He ought to quit listening to the State department and the bleeding hearts and help Japan get ready to fight. The first step for Japan should be to clean the Communists out of the country, without delay and without worrying about Ridgway's shop talk.

Buddist temple at Horyuji, Japan, is said to be the oldest wooden building in the world. Part of it have stood since 793 A.D.

Absentee voting was originated for military personnel in the Civil war and then gradually extended to civilians.

Broadway and Elsewhere

—By Jack Lait

New York—I saw the woman alone, the other night, sitting on a subway platform bench waiting for the D train, and suddenly I was filled with sorrow for all of them—all the women alone, in this city that can be for them so empty.

There was no way of telling how old she was, because there never is, with the women alone—the lonely, cold routine of their lives beats them into a kind of nondescript agelessness. They could be 25 or 50.

This one just sat there, glancing listlessly at the newspaper on her lap, and when the doors of my train opened I sat looking out at her and she looked up at me, with her eyes saying: Who are you? Are you someone to make me less alone?

Then the doors closed again and the train started up, and the men who had entered her life, momentarily by looking out at her, were gone. All the way home I thought about her. Not speculatively, not dreamily, the way you do if you pass Hedy Lamarr on the street, but wondering, I didn't wonder about where she was going or what she was going to do—what I knew; I knew she was going home to a can of bean soup and maybe a movie around the corner—but I wondered why she had become a woman alone. It isn't hard to figure, really. There aren't men enough to go around, here in the rock garden of Manhattan. Eligible men, that is. Half of Manhattan's men seem to be married, or in the process of being divorced or separated—and the other half can't be called eligible, because they have no time for or interest in weddings.

I speak roughly, of course. And I am referring only to Manhattan, the nerve center of New York, and not the other boroughs. On Staten Island and in Brooklyn and the Bronx and Queens, life goes along a little more conventionally; girl meets boy, girl becomes engaged to boy, girl marries boy and they live happily, more or less, in a house with a mortgage on it and a television aerial on its roof.

In Manhattan, things are rougher. The woman alone has a couple of weights around her neck. This is a city full of girls who are extraordinarily attractive; another pretty one is easily lost in the crowd.

The woman alone has a small apartment, or a furnished room, and holds off going to it at night as long as she can. She leaves the office promptly at five, to hold her pride together, although she would just as soon linger there, to keep from journeying home.

She drifts off into the jazzy city that is beginning to come alive, with its whirl of lights and its splash of five o'clock martinis, and she picks up an evening paper. She has no idea of where she is going and there is no great urge in her to do anything. If you were to examine her core, you would find only the vague, restless feeling: I want someone to keep me from being alone.

Maybe she takes in an early movie, sitting stubbornly through even the worst ones because the minutes are ticking away, and then when she comes out she hunts for a little cafeteria or a restaurant where the woman alone can eat. This is a city like any other city, that way; a man alone can eat almost anywhere and not give it a thought, but the woman alone has to think twice. Of the man alone, you can say,

MIGHTIER THAN THE SWORD!

Looking At Life —by Erich Brandeis

Husbands! Did you, by any chance, have a little trouble with your wife this morning?

Did she ask you for too much household money? Did she want a new hat, when she got one only two years ago?

Did she nag you because you dragged a lot of dirt in from the outside?

Did you, perhaps, way down in your heart of hearts, wish you had never got married, and did you think of that luscious blonde you saw last evening and who flirted with you?

If you did, you ain't heard nothing yet.

How would you like to be in the shoes of the Nizam of Hyderabad, who is considered the richest man in the world?

The Nizam, who wears a turban, if he wanted company he could have it by picking up a telephone. Of the woman alone, you think: Nobody called her. Nobody wants her. Or even if you don't think it, she thinks you do.

The woman alone is the woman who made the mistake of coming into Manhattan with the normal hopes and dreams of a normal girl, and now a few years have gone by and, if she is willing to settle for less, the men have stopped looking at her. She finds herself wearing more sensible shoes, and buying clothes because they are warm and not because they are chic.

She writes letters regularly now, to the women she knows in Philadelphia or Allentown or Raleigh who have husbands and babies, and if you look closely, you see that her lipstick has been put on a little carelessly. She is not a sloppy woman; she just has no one for whom to put it on carefully.

This is a city full of tragedies, full of endless disasters along with its remarkable triumphs, but none is more tragic than the woman alone. You want to look at all of them with brightness and lie to them. "Gee, that hat looks wonderful on you," but you don't. No one does. They will grow old alone, and, damn, but it's a shame.

Freedom Of Inquiry

Mr. Dore Schary, the motion picture producer, in the course of a lawsuit against a society in Los Angeles, known as the Wage Earners Committee, issued a public statement that is of more than passing interest.

The Wage Earners Committee has assumed the task of picketing motion pictures to which it objects. Labor unions have established the legality of the right to picket. Now that picketing is being done in non-labor matters, it comes as a shock that a social device intended to be used as a weapon of labor is being used as a weapon of opinion.

Picketing is legalized coercion. It has always been doubtful to me whether the picket line could be legalized in view of the citizen's right to have access to a building without molestation. However, the picket line has been legalized and will now be used for any purpose whatsoever until the public gets fed up with it and counter-legislation is passed. This is an example of what happens when a wrong device is legalized for political reasons.

Mr. Schary feels that he has been libeled and has gone to the courts. This is any man's right in the United States. His purpose is interesting. He goes to the courts, not to punish the libelers, but to set his own record straight, which is what he says in his advertisement.

That is a fascinating procedure, particularly for those who feel aggrieved at being held up to opprobrium for their conduct. Now this can be done in our courts, under the prevailing rules of evidence. It is difficult to grasp. A witness cannot read a statement in a court of law, as, for instance, Owen Lattimore did before the McCarran committee. He can only answer relevant and material questions. If the questions are not asked, they cannot be answered.

Still, a competent lawyer can find ways of getting statements into the record. It would seem to me more feasible if Mr. Schary voluntarily appeared before the House Committee on Un-American Activities and asked to be heard in defense of his honor as an American, he believing that it had been impugned.

In his advertisement, Dore Schary makes this statement: "Further, freedom of speech does not include the right of private groups to assume the functions of established government agencies and boards of inquiry."

He must have written that hurriedly, because it is altogether contrary to the history of the United States. Most important "purifications" and "reforms" in this country are the product of investigations by private organizations and individuals who created such furores that the Congress and state legislatures had to respond to their activities. It is absurd, in American life and tradition, to depend upon government for all things. After all, our theory of politics is that government is the agent, not the master, of the people, and that the "people" consists of many individuals each of whom has inalienable rights.

For instance, a clergyman in New York, Dr. Charles H. Parkhurst, was annoyed with vice. Parkhurst organized a society, did his own investigating, created a furore and the red light district was dissipated.

Upton Sinclair, a newspaperman, wrote a book called "The Jungle," describing the horrors of the Chicago stockyards. His book stirred the nation so that Congress passed our pure food laws.

In New York City, many children were killed by the railroad running through a street called descriptively, "Death Avenue." William Randolph Hearst and his newspapers, for years, conducted a campaign against "Death Avenue," forcing first the employment of various protectives and then the removal of the tracks.

The New York Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Children, the American Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals, the various woman suffrage organizations, labor unions, farmers organizations, etc., etc., may be cited as examples of private societies which, adopting their own programs, devised means to bring them to public attention, attacking and condemning their opponents, making investigations and influencing legislation by Congress and the state legislatures.

The right of the people to assemble for their own purposes, to petition Congress for redress of grievances, to state their grievances by speech and to publish them in the press, or in pamphlets, brochures and books, remains, in this country, unimpaired.

Of course, if anyone feels aggrieved by all this, he is free to do the same or to go into the courts for his remedy. That is freedom.

Sean O'Casey, Irish playwright, says, "I always bear in mind that the role Ireland currently plays in international affairs is that of a neutral. Now I maintain that it's all very well to be neutral—as long as it's clearly understood what side you're neutral against."

Pitcher Bobo Newson, one of the oddest characters (but not the most modest) who ever hit the big leagues, blamed all his ills and setbacks on a clay statuette his wife kept on her bureau. "Every time somebody knocks over that dang statuette," he grumbled, "I break a leg or something." "Why don't you ask your wife to throw it away?" asked a teammate. "Can't do that," explained Bobo. "It brings me luck."

Hollywood

Hollywood—Bud Abbott, of the comedy team of Abbott and Costello, thinks Charles Laughton is "the greatest gimmick we've ever had."

"People will come in," Bud gloated, "just to see what the hell Charles Laughton is doing with Abbott and Costello."

Laughton is playing the title pirate in "Abbott and Costello Meet Captain Kidd."

I asked the portly Briton if he didn't think working with the two buffoons was, well, short of beneath his dignity. After all, there's his Oscar, as Henry VIII . . . his celebrated Capt. Bligh . . . his Bible and Shakespeare reading before college audiences . . . His Drama Quartet hit on tour with Agnes Moorehead, Sir Cedric Hardwicke, and Charles Boyer . . .

"Certainly not," Laughton said firmly. "They have a tremendous audience in which I'm interested for what I do otherwise. I see all their pictures."

Abbott confided a little later that Laughton had told A. & C. "When I'm depressed, I always go to see one of your pictures. When I come out, I feel wonderful. I've always idolized you boys."

The script of the present film originally had Laughton playing a character as tough as Capt. Bligh of "Mutiny on the Bounty." But, Bud said, Laughton protested: "I don't want to be the villain all the time. I want to be part and parcel of your comedy. I want to spread a little of the cheer that you boys are spreading around the world."

This is the second A. & C. independent production. On the first, "Jack and the Beanstalk," Margaret and "The Schnozzola" In these days when it would jolt few people if an occupant of the White House joined the Marx Brothers, the two daughters of a cabinet member appeared as a team of sister acrobats and the wife of a Supreme Court Justice headed an effort to revive old-fashioned vaudeville, this column is not upset by the recent performances of Margaret Truman in a Truman, Jackson and Durante routine. In our book Margaret is doing okay and rates a hand for grit, determination and likeability. She certainly deserves an "A" for effort in the typical American success pattern.

There is no stuffiness about the gal. And if her voice isn't sensational, how many video performers are barred for that? This is an entertainment-made age. In a time of perplexing problems multiple headaches and major peril the folks fly the slogan "There's no biz like show biz!" The American public in the cities, in the villages and in penthouse, farmhouse, schoolhouse, log cabin, trailer and tent are going for novelties in the entertainment world. If a daughter of the President of the United States doing the struttaway with Jimmy Durante isn't a novelty, what is?

It is our hunch that Margaret is a hit with a vast majority, particularly outside the sophisticated centers. As Variety might headline the act "PREXY'S BABY CLIX." It would be impossible to picture any member of George Washington's family in a song and dance routine, or to imagine Lincoln, Grant, Cleveland, Taft, Hoover or Cal Coolidge having any member of the household subject to a review by "Billboard." But times have Lou was producer, Bud his employee. On the new picture it's vice versa. But Abbott claimed there's never any argument over who's boss.

Bud said his main chore, as producer, is signing more than 100 paychecks every Thursday. Abbott estimated their 30 movies, in 11 years, have grossed something like 100 million dollars. "That's what we've made for studios," he said. "Now we're entitled, with God's permission, to make some for ourselves."

Miss Lois White Married To Kenneth Reynolds Here

The Stroudsburg Methodist church was the scene of the pretty spring wedding of Miss Lois White, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Louis H. White, of Ansonia, to Kenneth E. Reynolds, son of Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd Reynolds, of 217 North Ninth St., Stroudsburg, on Saturday afternoon at 2:30.

Rev. Walter Johnston performed the ceremony in the presence of many friends of the young couple. The baskets of white gradiolas formed the background for the wedding party and white satin bows marked the pews.

Miss Doris Haase was soloist, singing "Because" and "I Love You Truly" before the ceremony. Walter J. Fregans was organist.

The bride who was given in marriage by her father wore a gown of white satin with sleeves and an overskirt of white Chantilly lace in a ballerina length. The illusion neckline was embellished with flowers and beaded with pearls. She wore a single strand of pearls at her throat, the gift of the bridegroom, and her headpiece was of white roses, matching the white roses in her bridal bouquet.

Miss Marjorie Reynolds, sister of the bridegroom, was maid of honor and wore a gown of peach Chantilly lace over satin and carried a colonial bouquet of pink carnations surrounded by yellow gladioli and blue lilies. Her headpiece was of pink carnations.

Warren McNeil was the best man, and the ushers were Russell LeBar Jr., cousin of the bride, and Ralph Reynolds, brother of the bridegroom.

The bride's mother wore Navy blue with white accessories and a corsage of gardenias. The bridegroom's mother wore royal blue with matching hat, and a corsage of gardenias.

Following the ceremony a reception for about 50 guests was held at the home of the bride's parents where white wedding bells and streamers formed a canopy for the tiered wedding cake.

Mr. and Mrs. Reynolds are now on a wedding trip. The bride wore a traveling suit of green with yellow hat, gloves, and brown shoes, and a corsage of white roses.

On their return they will live in their new home on Wayne Ave., Stroudsburg, near the High School.

The bride is a graduate of East Stroudsburg High School, and the bridegroom of Stroudsburg High, and they are both employed at Worthington Mower Co.

Nurses who have graduated from accredited schools of nursing but are not registered nurses may apply to Mary A. Rothrock, R.N., secretary of the Board of Professional Licenses, State Board of Examiners for the registration of nurses.

They will not be required to take examinations, Miss Shupp said.

Either science teachers are better or today's children are smarter, because it's the children who lead their parents by the hand through what looks like black magic. It's the children who have to read all the signs to know what makes aces of flame go up wires, and leather straps smack together, and pendulums swing with the motion of the earth—when it's so evident that the cathode neutralizes the acidity of the positive pole (or whatever it was they said.)

However, one young scientist got his come-uppance on Saturday. Forging ahead of his hopelessly unscientific parents, he missed entirely the preliminaries of a demonstration of man-made lightning and wandered back in looking for a sign of the bolt let loose and splintered a stick to smithereens, feet from his head, while everybody yelled "Look out!" and the thunder crashed above him.

It's a fascinating place, but I'll have to admit that I felt much more at home with the high-wheeled bicycles and the press-room from Ben Franklin's print shop than with the modern developments of what happened after he flew his kite and his key in a thunderstorm.

Amateur Night At Middle Smithfield

Middle Smithfield — The Middle Smithfield Band committee at a recent meeting planned to hold the second in a series of Amateur-Variety show sponsored by the Band committee and the school Parent-Teachers association, on Saturday, April 26.

The show will be divided into 3 groups. The first group will include any amateur regardless of age, who wishes to compete. Contestants planning to enter may call Mrs. Lester Fish, Mrs. Victor Hoehne or Joseph Kulick.

The second group will feature a skit staged by the PTA group combined with a group of choral numbers.

Climax will come with group three, which will be an elimination contest between the winners of the first group and the winners of the December 7 Amateur show, Rita and Myrna Fish, and Marilyn Kovacs.

There will be cash awards for the winners as well as a trophy presented by a local bowling enthusiast. Tickets will be placed on sale with the students or any member of the band committee or PTA.

The Band committee also planned to purchase 6 additional uniforms for the increased band personnel. Five members of the band will be graduated this year, but the enthusiasm among the third and fourth graders will compensate for the loss. The annual concert is scheduled for May 2 under the direction of Andrew Weingarten.

Just Between Us

—By Bobby Westbrook

If there's anything can make parents realize that they are no longer the fount of wisdom at which their children can quench their thirst for knowledge, it's a visit to a scientific affair like the Franklin Institute in Philadelphia.

Either science teachers are better or today's children are smarter, because it's the children who lead their parents by the hand through what looks like black magic. It's the children who have to read all the signs to know what makes aces of flame go up wires, and leather straps smack together, and pendulums swing with the motion of the earth—when it's so evident that the cathode neutralizes the acidity of the positive pole (or whatever it was they said.)

Lizbeth Jordan Chosen To Help New Freshmen

South Hadley, Mass. (AP) — The Dean of Residence at Mount Holyoke College has recently announced that Miss Lizbeth Jordan will be one of the girls who will live in freshman houses during their junior year. It is a campus custom and an honor for small groups of juniors to help their sister class become acquainted with college in this way. Usually from ten to sixteen juniors live in each of the four freshman dorms.

Miss Jordan is the daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Claus Jordan, of 707 Thomas St. She was graduated from Stroudsburg High school.

Miss Ladlee Is Bride Of L. L. Hendricks

Miss Janet Edna Ladlee, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Foster Ladlee, of East Stroudsburg became the bride of LeRoy Layton Hendricks, son of Mrs. Celestia Hendricks, of Lenox Ave., East Stroudsburg, on Saturday at 5:30 p. m. in the parsonage of the East Stroudsburg Methodist church.

Rev. Harold C. Eaton performed the ceremony with the bride's aunt and uncle, Mr. and Mrs. Louis Messerle, of Bushkill, serving as their attendants.

The bride wore a navy blue suit, with a matching hat of navy straw trimmed with rhinestones. Her corsage was of red roses.

Mrs. Messerle, as matron of honor, wore a navy blue dress with trimmings of a lighter blue and a corsage of red roses.

Following the ceremony, a reception was held at Shaffer's Inn for about 150 guests. A four-tiered wedding cake, baked by the bride's aunt, Mrs. Belva Fish, featured the bride's table.

The bride's mother wore a dress of royal blue with a corsage of red roses. The bridegroom's mother wore a brown print dress with yellow roses.

The bride attended the East Stroudsburg schools, and Mr. Hendricks attended Pocono Township schools, Tannersville. He is now employed with his brother Clayton Hendricks in the coal business.

Presbyterian Women Discuss Church Heritage

At the March meeting of the Woman's auxiliary of the East Stroudsburg Presbyterian church, there was a program on "The Challenge of Our Presbyterian Heritage" in which members took part. Mrs. F. Lynn Lantz, Mrs. Howard O. Kester, Mrs. Ashton Burrows and Miss Bess Gardner presented different phases of the topic.

Mrs. Paul Dellaria, president, urged members to attend the Spring Presbyterian meeting to be held in the First Presbyterian church in Allentown on April 25, and announced that CARE packages sponsored by the auxiliary and the circles had been sent to Yugoslavia.

Mrs. Jesse Flory introduced Miss Diethe Mueller, a teacher from Bremerhaven, Germany now teaching in the East Stroudsburg schools, who spoke on the religious life in present-day Germany.

One new member, Mrs. Eugene Edelman, was welcomed. Refreshments were served by the Dorcas circle with decorations in the Easter theme.

THE PICTURE above shows a new variation of the old and famous cotton gin invented by Eli Whitney. It's called a cotton picker machine and is used by the East Stroudsburg Bedding Co., 437 Main St., Stroudsburg. The local factory uses the machine to reprocess cotton. The cotton from old, out-of-shape mattresses is placed in this machine and entirely reprocessed and relined. When the machine finishes its job the cotton is like new and ready to be used in a rebuilt mattress. Fabian Lauer, manager of the company, points out over half of his business is devoted to such work. It represents a huge saving for the customer, he states. The local firm also makes custom-built mattresses.

Outdoors Playthings Hold Interest

The warm and welcome feeling of spring which spread over this region Saturday brought many a resident out of so-called winter hibernation.

The stores were busy with shoppers, parking places were again at a premium and home owners once again became conscious of neglected yards. Lawn mowers were being oiled and cleaned, leaves were being raked in neat piles and paint brushes were flying.

It was a welcome sight that added up to both work and pleasure. It was spring cleaning time again—both indoors and out.

Merchandise in the store also called attention to the advent of a fresh, new season. At the A. C. Miller furniture store, corner of Fourth and Main Sts., Stroudsburg, displays of summer furniture began to attract the attention of shoppers. At the center of the store a colorful display of backyard playthings proved very popular with the younger set.

Little boys and girls pleaded with their parents to try out the shiny, new aluminum sliding board, the backyard gymnasium or the see-saw.

And in the children's furniture department new strollers, carriages and swings attracted the attention of mothers.

37 Musicians To Take Part In Concert

When the Young People's Orchestra assembles on the stage of the auditorium of Stroudsburg High School on Wednesday at 8 p.m., 37 musicians will tune their instruments to play the fourth concert presented by the county's principal orchestra. The concert will be conducted by Thomas H. Knepp.

The principal violinist of the orchestra, Martin Peiffer, will direct two numbers played especially for the children who will attend the concert.

The soloist will be Charlotte Herman, a pupil of Carroll. She will play the first movement of Beethoven's Piano Concerto No. 2. The orchestra provides an opportunity for county residents who are interested in orchestra music to enjoy their hobby. At the same time high school students have the privilege of studying and playing with a group of older musicians with many years of experience.

Sixteen of the 37 members are high school students, five are school teachers, four are housewives, two are salesmen. Other occupations are represented in the group are minister, interior decorator, gardener, factory worker, real estate dealer, factory operator, college student, chemical engineer, and former serviceman.

Those listed in the personnel are:

Violins—Numa Snyder, concertmaster; Philip Palmer, assistant concertmaster; Dorcas Lee Bradburn, Howard Alles, Louise Gorman, Ethel Baumann, Lettie Wood, Robert Hawk, principal, Ann Frailey, Carl Wolff, Donald Blasko, Beatrice Hiebler.
Violas—Martin Peiffer, principal; Lyle Thomas, Walter Lechewisch.
Cellos—Carmen Cavuto, principal; Charlotte Herman, Kathryn Hickey.
Basses—Merle Stevenson, principal; Hans Budicker, John Wilhoite.
Flute—Ruth Fetherman.
Oboes—James Ifft, Peter Gornant.
Clarinets—Robert Shively, Kenneth Lee.
Horns—John Pyle, Wilhelmina Fry, Margaret Denning.
Trumpets—Clarence Weiss, Earl Weiss.
Trombones—Earl Groner Jr., Jack Howitt, John Hiller Jr., Tuba—Floyd Frisbie.
Tympani—Peter Kiefer.
Percussion—Jacob Kintz II.

Corruption-Exposing Senator Follows T.R.'s Advice To Speak Softly But Carry Big Stick

By David A. Heller
Central Press Correspondent
Washington — "Speak softly," counseled President Teddy Roosevelt, "but always carry a big stick."

Nobody ever followed Roosevelt's advice as literally as Senator John J. Williams of Delaware, the famous lone wolf investigator of the Upper House, who has rocked Washington and the nation with his disclosures of sordid corruption in the Bureau of Internal Revenue and influence peddling before the PFC.

Known to his colleagues as "Whispering Williams" because his soft-spoken drawl is hard to hear, Senator Williams still carries a stick big enough to cause a chain reaction which resulted in the firing of more than 150 tax officials. These include the removal of six district collectors, and the indictment of three of them. The scandals caused the President to propose the reorganization of the Bureau of Internal Revenue.

Most observers also attribute the resignation of former Democratic national chairman, William Boyle, to Williams. Boyle quit under intense pressure after Williams revealed that he had accepted large legal fees from a St. Louis printing company for whom he allegedly used influence in obtaining an RFC loan previously refused three times. (Boyle says he quite for reasons of health).

In an exclusive interview with Central Press, Senator Williams outlined some of the steps he took to uncover corruption in high places. It's a fascinating story, worthy of Dick Tracy at his best. Senator Williams credits most of his novel success at sleuthing to the simple process of reading government reports.

"It costs several million dollars to prepare these reports," he said, "but almost nobody reads them. I plow through the masses of figures to try to find out what the government agencies are really doing with the billions of dollars the public entrusts to them."

The results are shocking to a businessman, the senator maintains. "Without qualification, I can say that the federal government has the worst system of bookkeeping in the world," he said. "All kinds of skulduggery can be covered up, if a private citizen operated that way, he'd soon land in jail."

The senator cites his first big expose, the case of the Commodities Credit Corporation's missing $360 million, to prove his point.

On March 25, 1949, Williams took the floor of the Senate and demanded that the CCC be made to account for the $360 million plus. That amount, he said, was missing when the General Accounting Office tried to audit its books. The Senate was agast. Most senators simply refused to believe that such a thing could happen.

Under Williams' prodding, an investigation was made and he was proved right. Senatorial wrath forced the CCC to scrounge around for transactions to back up its vouchers. All were found except items for a mere $81 million, which, at this writing, is still missing.

Closely allied were charges by Williams that the commodity market was being "rigged" by CCC deals for the benefit of "insiders," who, the senator said, were making huge sums speculating.

"The secretary of agriculture made an investigation which he refused to make public," Williams said. "That would make interesting reading if anyone could ever pry it out of him. He has refused to release it, even to members of Congress."

"Nine-tenths of the material I have obtained exposing mismanagement has come from the government's own files," Williams says. "For example, I wrote to Secretary of the Treasury Snyder nearly two years ago informing him of the mess that existed in the Third Internal Revenue District in New York. He paid absolutely no attention to me. Eight deputy collectors there had been convicted in four years of criminal offenses.

"Washington officials of the Bureau of Internal Revenue refused to co-operate when I asked for material on the status of delinquent cases in the Third District. So I went to New York unidentified, waited in the collector's office to see him."

"When I got in, I identified myself and demanded to see his files. I substantiated my suspicions. Two days later, the Bureau of Internal Revenue in Washington announced that it was sending a squad of 65 agents to the Third District to look for irregularities."

Williams is a 43-year-old Delaware chicken farmer who runs one of the state's most prosperous chicken-feed businesses on the side. He has been in business for himself since age 18, a fact to which he credits his knack for running through balanced sheets and other financial data.

His unparalleled success in investigation the refused to ask the Senate for a cent of expense money and he has not hired any lawyers or investigators in his searchings. He has surprised the entire nation except the folk at Millsboro, Del. (pop. 485), his home town.

They recall that Williams, an unknown who never held public office decided to run for the Senate in 1946, got the nomination

McCoy Sets Record As Farrell Wins

Philadelphia (AP) — Farrell High school's Steelers today rule as the high school basketball champions of Pennsylvania — thanks to a record-breaking performance by their great Julius McCoy.

Farrell made good on its third try for the class "A" PIAA cage title Saturday night at the Palestra by whipping a fighting Coatesville quintet, 63-55, before an overflow of 8,300.

McCoy stole the show, collecting 13 of his 29 points in the final period to stave off a determined rally by the suddenly-revitalized Coatesville Raiders. The Raiders were only five points behind when McCoy became red-hot with his left-handed hook shots and snuffed out the threat.

"And the boy was sick, too; had an upset stomach," said Farrell coach Eddie McCluskey as he received congratulations in the dressing room. "I had to take him out three times to let him catch his breath."

McCoy's 29 points shattered the two-year record of Swoyersville's John Holup who had tallied 27 against a winning Homestead team in 1950. The six feet one all-state center made his 12 field goals in 26 attempts and boosted his season's record to 723 points.

Streak Halted
Coatesville, which entered the game with a 14-game winning streak and a 23-3 record, spotted Farrell 11 points before the eastern regional champions could get their offense rolling. The Raiders were obviously rattled. Guard Ronnie Brown finally dropped in a layup shot after six minutes for Coatesville's first score.

Farrell, which had lost two previous appearances in the finals including last year's 66-55 defeat by Allentown, led at the quarter, 18-9; at the half 31-23, and at the three-quarter mark, 46-33.

Bob Hoffman, Farrell's five-foot guard, prevented the Raiders from concentrating too much of their defense on McCoy with his deadly set shots. Hoffman added 21 points to the Steelers' total.

Farrell's all-court press continually baffled the Coatesville players and accounted for many interceptions and stealing of the ball. McCoy continually outjumped six-foot four center Ernie Bryant under the Raiders' basket although Farrell was only hitting on 35 percent of its shots.

Coatesville's play was sparked by the clever ball-handling of Al Zazo, a 5-7 substitute guard, who led the Raiders' last-period spurt. His total 12 points were just behind Jim Lopp's 13 for the losers.

Allen Starts Another Rhubarb—This Means Kansas Is Coming To New York Once Again

New York (AP) — Dr. Phog Allen's successful sit-down strike lasted less than an hour, so the Kansas university coach packed up his Jayhawks and brought them east yesterday for a "dream game" with invitation champion LaSalle in the Olympic basketball trials.

Nevertheless, there were still undertones of discord as the opening round survivors—the two top teams in the AAU and the champions of the two big college tournaments—were assembled for the semi-finals tonight at Madison Square Garden.

Allen, in a post-midnight ultimatum, said he and his team wouldn't budge out of Kansas City until he got assurance there would be at least one western official in the New York games.

"We don't have a chance to win with two eastern officials in Madison Square Garden," basketball's outspoken doctor said.

Excitement
The ultimatum created a brief period of early morning turmoil. Olympic officials were routed out of their beds. Telephones jangled across the country. After a series of long-distance conferences, the Olympic committee acceded to Allen's demands.

But Asa Bushnell, who as commissioner of the Eastern Conference had been delegated by the committee to make the refereeing assignments, said in a statement that he thought Allen had done the sport a "diservice" by implying he couldn't get a square deal from an official outside his area.

Opening the program tonight, the Peoria Caterpillars, National AAU champions, and the Phillips 66 Oilers of Bartlesville, Okla., AAU runnerup and perennial Industrial League champions, clash at 7:45 p.m.

Kansas' NCAA titleholders take on LaSalle's cinderella Explorers in the second game, marking the first meeting of the two tournament champions since 1945 when big Bob Kurland, now with the Oilers, led Oklahoma A&M to a 52-44 triumph over DePaul.

Allen tossed his bombshell shortly after his towering college champions had humbled Springfield (Mo.) State in Kansas City Saturday night, 92-64. Officials already had been delegated for the games, and they were strictly easterners.

But, to meet the Kansas coach's demand, signals were changed quickly and a mixed-officiating lineup for the game was arranged. Named for the job were John Nucatola, referee, from Bayside, L. I., and Ronald Gibbs, umpire, from Springfield, Ill., a Big Seven horn-blower, Kansas, with college basketball's outstanding individual performer in the six-foot-nine all-America Clyde Lovellette, rules, a slight favorite over LaSalle's red-hot "Fuzz kids" but the AAU games figures to be a tossup.

Even Records
Although the Caterpillars trimmed the Oilers, 66-53, in the recent AAU tournament final, the two seasoned, smooth-working independents have split even in four games during the past season.

Saturday night the Caterpillars staged a fourth period rally on the deadly outside shooting of Howie Williams to trim the U. S. Air Force of Tinker Field, Okla., 71-67. The Oilers, forced into a double overtime, beat the Hollywood, Calif., McGees, 50-48, on Wayne Glasgow's goal in the second extra period at Kansas City.

LaSalle advanced to the semi-finals by downing St. John's of Brooklyn, 71-62, on the brilliant outside shooting of Norm Grekin and its two freshman stars, Tom Gola and Fred Lehe.

Crowe's Crew Drops Four

Easton—Crowe's Insurance was mathematically eliminated from the Delaware Valley League title chase on Saturday, as a red-hot Dainty Potato Chips bowling team swept four points from the East Stroudsburg contingent, here at the Easton Recreation.

Scoring honors were well divided on the victorious club, as Howard Kutz, Don Gibbs, John Otto, Art Heilings and Cliff Kohler banded together for a match score of 3,045 pins, the highest in the circuit thus far this season.

Big Gun
Otto was the number one point producer for the Chips, hitting a high single of 240 and a high match of 657.

Jake Nittel led the winning attack with a high single of 213 and top match score of 586.

Funnybook, Television Heroes Set False Pattern, Says Speaker

"Funnybook and television heroes" are fast becoming the only ideals of thousands and thousands of America's children today, a Reading, Pa., layman and youth leader said here Saturday.

Addressing parents, teachers and youth leaders at a special child guidance institute in the Stroudsburg Seventh-day Adventist church, the denominational official, Anthony W. Kaytor, Sabbath school secretary of the East Pennsylvania Conference of Seventh-day Adventists, charged that this condition is fast "weaning many children away from principles being taught them in the home and church."

Kaytor spoke at an afternoon session of the institute in an address "Evangelism Through Stories."

He told the group that "children are naturally hero worshipers and plan their lives after the things they worship. But rather than emulating the heroes of the Bible and historical literature, many children, through no fault of their own, are accepting cheap and selfish patterns for their lives."

The youth leader told the audience that "in view of these conditions, your work as youth leaders and parents is becoming more difficult, but more important, than ever. You have the work of counteracting these downward influences, of implanting high principles in the lives of the children."

Watch Your Step Tomorrow; You Might Get A Note To Call Mr. Kopper Or Mr. Fish

By Henry C. Nicholas

Written Especially for Central Press and This Newspaper

Did you ever find a note on your desk to call Mr. Kopper, Mr. Wolfe or Mr. Fish at a given telephone number when you arrived for work on the morning of April 1? Then, when you did call, find that you were talking with the police station, the zoo or the aquarium?

The zoo and the aquarium in some large cities receive so many such calls on April 1 that some have found it necessary to designate a special operator to answer them.

It is a legend among Wall street newspapermen that such an April Fool prank was played on the dignified J. Pierpont Morgan, when he was in the midst of organizing the United States Steel corporation.

He found a note on his desk asking him to call Sullivan, head of the powerful National City Bank. Morgan told his secretary to get that telephone number and was enraged when he found he was talking with the city morgue.

It was always suspected that one of the newspaper reporters, who were covering the offices of J. P. Morgan and company at that time, was the guilty party.

Just how and when April Fool's Day originated remains a mystery. All we know is that it originated thousands of years ago and its observance has since spread almost completely around the world.

The best guess is that it originated in ancient India or Rome. Certainly, the practice of playing jokes on April 1 dates back to time immemorial.

We do know that in ancient India, at the feast of Huli held in the spring, it was the custom of some Hindus to persuade other Hindus to go in search of hens' teeth, pigeons' milk, or whatever else the Hindu jokers could think of.

Others attribute the origin to the ancient Romans, who sent other Romans on foolish errands during the feast of Cerealia in April. This was based on the mythological story of Ceres, who pursued in all directions the echo of the screams of her daughter after the maiden was carried away to the lower regions by the god of the underworld.

April 1 is known in the Scottish highlands as Gowl Day. Gowl is Scotch for cuckoo and Scots think it amusing to send a gullible friend to another friend's house, bearing a note which reads: "This being the first of April send the gowl another mile." This goes on and on until the gullible "gowl" finally gets wise to the joke that has been played on him.

The newspapers years ago were responsible for the most famous April Fool hoaxes. In 1832 a London newspaper ran an advertisement announcing that the government was paying fancy prices for cats, and instructing cat owners to bring their animals to the address of a prominent government official on the following day, which was April 1. It is said that nearly a thousand cats were delivered to the address.

the unfortunate householder before the day was over.

A Berlin newspaper around the turn of the century printed a sensational story about the robbery of the Washington mint, complete with descriptions of the tunnel the mythical bandits supposedly constructed under the Potomac and the submarines which carried the gold to waiting ships.

The story was cabled to this country and caused a public demand for an investigation of the robbery by Congress, until it was realized that this was another April Fool hoax.

April 1 of the same year is still remembered as about the busiest day in the history of the New York police department. On the afternoon of the day previously someone had employed messengers to distribute circulars on the East Side of New York, in Brooklyn and the Bronx.

These circulars stated that the city had decided to dispose of all its benches in Central Park, and that all persons, especially children, could have as many as they wished if they would carry them away the following day, which just happened to be April 1.

Early that day a great army of children from every section of New York City descended upon Central Park and began hauling away the benches. The few park police were completely unable to handle the rapidly increasing number of children who poured through every entrance like great swarms of bees, and promptly sent in a riot call.

You will find this comment on April Fool's Day in a calendar published in 1760:

It is a thing to be disputed, Which is the greater fool reputed— The man who innocently went, Or he that him designedly sent.

It is a thing to be disputed, Which is the greater fool reputed— The man who innocently went, Or he that him designedly sent.

Night-Long Dreams Of Paris, Unreal Based Upon Real, May Have Been Caused by Dining

Editor's Note: Following is the twenty-sixth in a series of reports from Britain and Europe by Ruth Haller Ottaway, mother of James H. Ottaway, publisher of The Daily Record. The writer is an experienced journalist and traveler and her reports from abroad in recent years have received a favorable reception by Record readers.

By Ruth Haller Ottaway

Paris—It might have been our dining at the Brasserie de la Reine Pedaque near the Gare Saint Lazare (Don't miss it). Or perhaps it was the heavenly soupe a l'Oignon au vin blanc that caused night-long dreams of this and that in Paris, the unreal based upon the real.

Our "machine a taper" (typewriter) has had its daily workout. Subconscious desire to avoid this constant tapping no doubt brought the blissful dream that you were receiving by mail a vocal rendition of these ravings recorded on a thin piece of paper!

Mrs. Ottaway

Not so fantastic. Paris has on sale the Roneo phone which "permits you to send your voice in a simple envelope to your correspondents who may reply in kind on the magic paper."

Move over the radio, television and grand piano. We are all going to be Roneophone fans, and run in pieces of magic paper to hear what our broker or Aunt Matilda has to say.

Having sent you our magic voice, and with no typing to do, we went gaily off to the Palais des Sports to see the finals in the six-day cycle race. Once there we read that Toulouse organized the first such race in Europe in 1906, but after three days the management absconded with the receipts! Paris seemed to be a jinx for this race in 1910. The Seine overflowed and stopped the race and also temporarily the building of the Palais des Sports, the Madison Square Garden of Paris.

A plan to give symphony concerts in this sports building which holds 15,000 people will make possible low-priced admissions. The Concertgebouw Orchestra of Amsterdam and the London Philharmonic are billed to start the series. This year's cycle finals were exciting enough, but in Alice in Wonderland wanderings down dark stairways, through mystic halls in this huge barn of a building, what had happened before in fact was reenacted in our Paris dream. On the flower-laden and candle-lighted ringside tables where we sat, cabbages, tomatoes and even bottles rained down upon us from the disgruntled galleries. One beautiful green bottle bounced off our rubber pates and sent your scribe scuttling off to another ceremony.

Midwifery is still a legal and official institution in both France and England. What fun then in our dream to attend the recent ceremony for a French midwife in Nancy. She is 84, and she received the French Order of Social Merit for delivering more than 7000 babies, and is still busy. In bringing greetings from the United States, we said that we were bound to advise that a Gallup poll of our babies between the ages of one and three showed 90% against midwifery and everything else although at one time a Gallup national election poll had been quite wrong.

A leap from babies to drummers is not so far. At least it has proved not to be, alas, in our house. Much impressed by the doings of an offended drummer in the Rouen Orchestra, he wandered into our land of dreams. His actual exploits caused hard breathing and anxiety on our part because his attacks seemed personal and directed at our Maestro instead of another. This drummer's conductor played a concert with no work which gave the big drum a chance.

So Mr. Drummer called the "pompiers" to put out a fire at the conductor's house, a doctor and ambulance for him because he was dying, the police because he was dead, and under the name of a superior he fired the conductor, engaged another, and arranged a concert in which his drum played a big roll and made so much noise that the poor drummer was arrested! Fact or fiction? Every word true. Loud hurrahs from thousands of orchestra players deafened our ears until the sound of the big drum faded into the distance and the irate drummer turned into a curate.

Here was the Abbe Grandmaugain receiving from the French Government his lottery winnings of 13 million francs (about $37,107.) He said that he planned to enlarge the church cinema hall, to replace his old jalousies with two modern cars in order to cover the district, and to remodel his church. He did not seem astonished at our urgent request that he give half of his national lottery winnings to the U. S. "because Monsieur l'Abbe, we just cannot balance the budget, and you know what we do to help France." "And yourselves, my child?" said he raising his eyebrows and twinkling kindly. "To change the subject quickly, we popped the question, 'What are you French anyway, merely logical, unmoral or what with your national lotteries?' And the Abbe faded away until dense darkness was all around.

It was dark. We were trying to descend six flights of stairs, 100 steps from the top hideaway of our young American friends. In the usual French style the minuterie was working perfectly. If we could find the light-switch, we snapped on the light which stayed on calculated seconds, a bare minute, during which we were supposed to have arrived at the next lower flight in time to snap on the next light. We skeddaddled but as in real life found ourselves stumbling in the dark with the usual remark, "Who but the French would think out such an economy?"

We debouched from the dark stairways into a high-ceilinged restaurant solidly packed with French people. (Probably "Webster's" near the Madeleine.) As they gaily ordered their wine and savored their coq au vin, the male contingent of our party, the Maestro, arose, cleared his throat and said: "Attention, mes amis. Just a little question. How many of you sons of France have paid your taxes? How many of you keep two account books?" The mob descended upon him, and he was carried out to shouts of "Americaine! Millionaire! Cochon!" and came to life later with a "hoarded" nugget of gold in his hand which had fallen from a French pocket. And what wakened him? A delicious fragrance which made him apologize and say, "Oh, my dear French friends, all is forgiven. Why pay taxes, why not hoard your gold when you can make the whole world happy with such delicious, such perfect onion soup?"

Just then the clanking of huge chains, one after the other falling to the floor with the sound of a thousand smashing glasses wakened us. The early morning brought the porter on the Dunkirk-Dover Train Ferry who said, "Did you sleep well, Madam? The chains? We tried clamping the wheels to the ship, but it didn't work, and we have to use chains, you know. Sorry." Miraculously we had arrived at Dover and in two hours we were in London.
